The closing exercises of the Sherman School, St. Louis, occurred Thursday, June 17th, 1909. Miss Beckwith Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed C. Baird, of Arcadia, was one of the graduates, and we are told acquitted herself splendidly. We congratulate the young lady.

Dr. George W. Toney, for many years one of the most prominent practicing physicians throughout this entire section of the country, expects to leave Piedmont at an early date. He has sold his beautiful home here to Mr. T. J. Swazey, and will probably reside in Fulton, Mo., where he has a married daughter. Dr. Toney is a splendid physician, and his long labors here have endeared him to hundreds of families. His removal will be a distinct loss to the community.—Piedmont Banner.

Mrs. W. H. Blaine and daughter, Attie, went to Arcadia to attend the commencement exercises at the Ursuline Academy. From there Miss Attie will make an extended visit to Kansas City where she will be one of the bridesmaids at Miss Fitzgerald's wedding.—Piedmont Banner.

Misses Lora and Lillie Bishop, who are attending the Summer Normal at Cape Girardeau, write us that they heard Mr. Bryan deliver his famous lecture, "The Price of a Soul," Monday night of last week. The young ladies characterize the address as most eloquent and beautiful.

Mr. J. Hummel returned Saturday from a prospecting tour in Mississippi and Alabama. He has decided to locate in Jasper, Alabama, where he will erect a hub factory. Jasper is a town of about 3,000, about forty miles from Birmingham. We wish him great success in his new field.

At the meeting of the Ironton school board Monday evening seven of the eight $500 bonds issued by the district for the purpose of building an addition to the school house were disposed of at a premium of $53. Five of the bonds were awarded to Arthur Huff, as an agent for some one, and two to Mrs. Thos. Newman. Another bond is yet to be sold.

Otto F. Rieke, Nineteenth Recruit Company, has been transferred from that organization to the new Twenty-fourth Recruit Company band, which is now being organized at the depot, and appointed a sergeant therein. Applicants for the new band are being examined at Fort Slocum, N. Y., and Columbus Barracks, Ohio, and those found proficient will be forwarded to this depot for assignment.—Globe-Democrat.

A. H. Greason, formerly one of the best-known lumbermen in this section of Missouri, died Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. His immediate family surrounded him, with the exception of a son, Glenn, who lay critically ill in another apartment of the home at Seventh and Vine streets. The funeral ceremonies were arranged for 3 o'clock this afternoon, the obsequies to be under the conduct of the Rev. J. O. Willett of the First Baptist church. Mr. Greason came to Poplar Bluff in 1882. He engaged in the lumber business and was a member of the Gareson-Greason lumber company. About a year and a half ago he fell ill and never did he regain health. He was taken to a sanitarium in St. Louis and underwent two operations. It was thought his condition had so improved that he could safely be brought home and he came here about one month ago. He suffered a disorder of the stomach that sapped his strength and he steadily declined until his death. He at one time was a member of the Poplar Bluff board of education and was deeply interested in educational and public affairs before his health was undermined. Mr. Greason leaves a widow and ten children. Three sisters, who live in the west, and one brother, J. D. Greason, survive him. He was 57 years old. His son Glenn has been dangerously sick for a long time, having returned a short while ago from the west, whither he had gone in an unsuccessful quest for health.—Poplar Bluff Citizen-Democrat.

The wedding of Miss Olive Begley and Mr. Richard Jacobmeyer took place at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Vine street residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Begley. It was a most notable event of the year. About 150 guests were present. The ceremonies attending the nuptial benediction by the Rev. W. M. Baker, pastor of the Christian church, were exquisitely beautiful. The minister stood beneath a great bell of carnations and smilax in the first parlor to receive the bridal party. The smartly clad guests were grouped in the parlors and hall, which were gardens of red and white roses and rich foliage. Potted plants and festoons of smilax added their refreshing and restful loveliness to the decorations. A heavy rainfall, that apparently had no effect on the attendance, caused the postponement of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobmeyer's departure on their honeymoon trip. They had planned to leave immediately after the wedding but deferred it until Thursday afternoon, when they left on an Iron Mountain train for St. Louis.

Their travel plans, after reaching that city, the bridal pair kept a secret from everyone. Members of their families and a number of friends were at the depot to bid them Godspeed and before the train drew away showers of rice were hurled at the window of the sweethearts' compartment. They will return July 1st to take up their abode in the Begley home. They left behind them, stored in their future residence, a rich collection of elegant gifts, tokens of love and esteem from family and friends.—Poplar Bluff Citizen.

A correspondent to the Farmington Times writes of a visit to "The Peak of Pilot Knob." "For the benefit of some of your readers account of a trip to the peak of Pilot Knob this afternoon by my nephew and myself may not be uninteresting. Having no guide we were in doubt where to make the ascent, but leaving the railroad by a side track near the company office, we came at first to the ruins of a large old stone blast furnace with trees growing on top of it. Some of its stones were about 2x3x6 feet. We learned that it was built in 1852—37 years ago. Going on up the hollow a northeast course we came to a mill and washer, erected and operated ten years ago. Here we turned south to make the ascent and encountered such steep climbing as to take our breath. A part of the tramway was at an angle of 45 degrees. After a long and tiresome climb of one-half mile, we began to see the cuts and bluffs, with great rocks, many of which were as large as an average dwelling house. Here was a scene, a combination of art and nature, which almost rivals some of the fine gorges pictured in Arizona canyons. At one place on the west there is a tunnel—more properly an artificial cave—the cool air from which can be felt 50 or 60 yards from its mouth, and to stand in its mouth or to go out a little distance into it, as we did, you will wish to have your coat on. But the coat is a burden in climbing the mountain on a June day. We went into a similar cave on the east side of the Knob, but there is no circulation of air in it as in the former, but the interior is more beautiful. We found one bluff, more than 100 yards long and 45 to 60 feet high, which had been blasted off years ago. We were forcibly impressed with the vast amount of work that has been done on this old hill, by many perhaps who have long since been sleeping in their narrow homes. Although somewhat smoky we had a fine view of the surrounding country. Pilot Knob and Ironton were each spread out like a map before us, as we looked westward and south. The Iron Mountain railroad looked like a little toy road, and a long freight pulled by a "double-header" looked like the little toy trains at the World's Fair. On the top would be a fine place to lunch, and we saw signs where people had recently done so. We had in all a pleasant and profitable ramble."

A Sad Accident.

The relatives of Homan Drew, son of John and Lillie Drew, were heart-broken on last Monday morning, June 14th, 1909, to hear of his sad death which occurred at De Soto, Mo., in the I. M. R. R. shops. He was struck and almost instantly killed by an empty wheel, which burst and two pieces hit him, one in the stomach and another struck him in the jaw. He was taken to the operating room at the Y. M. C. A. and Dr. Farrar called in at once, but all that medical aid and friends and loved ones could do was of no avail. It was time to go, and the broken-hearted mother and other loved ones are left to mourn the loss of their beloved boy. Homan was a model young man. It is said by many friends and associates that he was an exception to the young men of to-day. He had no bad habits, always kind and obedient to his mother. She, more than all, will miss his place in the home. When other boys would be out on the street and away, he would always be at home trying to be of some help to her. He was born June 1st, 1891, and was the eldest of five children. The funeral was held from the Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the remains laid to rest in the city cemetery. The many beautiful floral designs indicated the friends of the young man. The machinists, boiler makers and other shop employees marched in a body in the funeral procession. The accident is a sad one and may God comfort the heart-broken mother. May she so live that, although she can't see and understand why God should take her dear boy away, some day He will reveal to her why it was done. He knows and does all things for the best. A RELATIVE.

At Arcadia College.

Last Thursday afternoon the spacious Recreation Hall of Arcadia College was crowded to its extreme limit by friends and patrons of the school. Promptly at 2 o'clock the exercises began, and interest in the programme did not flag an instant during the three hours required to render it. I always look forward to the music which makes up a considerable part of the programme, and think the excellence of the renditions grows with each succeeding year. There was no disappointment in store for me last Thursday. "On the contrary, quite the reverse." The selections, beautiful, and sometimes not easy of translation, were given charmingly. The Essays—there were four—were not of the mediocre type or on usual subjects, worn threadbare through the ages, but they were thoughtful, bright and original. Sometimes one sits politely patient through this section of the programme, and inwardly greets with relief its conclusion. Not so in this instance. The fair essayists were pleasing to look upon, their enunciation was clear and distinct, and sparkling thought in fitting language clothed their efforts with never-ceasing interest. The little folk in "The Land of Dolls" contributed their full part to the entertainment, entering with enthusiasm into the spirit of the play so well adapted to their beliefs and understanding. May their lives be bright and happy, attended with the minimum of care and trouble!

At the conclusion of the programme came the award of Graduating Honors and the Distribution of Premiums, as follows:

Graduating Medal and Laurel Crown—Miss Laura Lucille Longmott, Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Miss Katherine Marie Harden, Brooklyn, New York.

Certificate—For Having Completed the 7th Grade of the National Conservatory Course—Miss Irene Marshall and Mary Ross.

Diploma—For Having Completed the Studies of the Commercial Department—Miss Mary Laura Fortenberry.

The day's exercises closed with a short and happy address by one of the visiting fathers, and after the usual greetings the crowds filled the building and grounds departed homeward, to await the coming of the next Arcadia College Commencement.

Rev. L. F. Aspley.

(Fredericktown Democrat-News.)

In point of service the Rev. L. F. Aspley is one of the oldest ministers in the Southern Methodist church. In the year 1859 the Methodist church at Arcadia was made a station by the Methodist conference held that year at Independence, Mo., and the Rev. Mr. Aspley was appointed the first station preacher at that point. This was the third year of his ministry. Rev. Aspley was not a student of Father Berryman's school at Arcadia, as is generally supposed, but he intended to take up his studies at this institution when the war prevented. Father Berryman's school was flourishing at that time and was very successful and was patronized by all of Southeast Missouri, there being between 200 and 300 pupils in attendance. During Mr. Aspley's pastorate at Arcadia, Father Berryman disposed of the property to his principal, Prof. A. C. Farham. The war coming on the school was broken up for a time and the property utilized by the government, but by special permission of Gen. C. B. Fisk, Mr. Berryman regained possession and the school was re-opened and continued under his management.

Rev. Aspley is closing his 52d year in the ministry of the Methodist church and during all that time has answered to roll-call in 51 annual conferences of the St. Louis conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. In speaking of his long and faithful ministry, Rev. Aspley stated to the Democrat News, "The Lord has been good to me; I have given my entire life to the church and have been happy in my work; I have always had good appointments."

The last conference sent Rev. Aspley back to Arcadia where he now resides and no man stands higher in the estimation of the people of the Valley than he does. He is an earnest Christian gentleman whose friends are legion.

Des Arc Items.

We had a fine rain Sunday evening, which will make the early potatoes. The wheat crop is good, only a little thin on the ground. Corn is late, but looking fine.

Very little lumber and logs coming in. The farmers are busy in the corn and harvest.

C. S. Fitz, from Corydon on the Missouri Southern railroad, was home Saturday for a short while.

John Nation and E. W. Fitz went to Leeper to play ball, but the rain knocked the game out.

Mrs. Thos. P. Fitz attended the funeral of her nephew, Homer Drew, who was killed in the railroad shops at De Soto, June 14th, by an empty wheel bursting.

A band of the Salvation Army was at Marquand last week, holding meetings on the streets. These people are doing a good work, and while their form of service seems funny to some still they reach a class that no other denomination can. They should be encouraged. They went to Lutesville.

The Doe Run Lead Company shipped a large pump here Saturday. They will use it in pumping the water out of the lead mines. The lead men will be here Monday.

The president of the Holiness College has arrived and is making arrangements for the fall term of school. They will have seven teachers next year.

Mrs. J. L. Strader has gone on an extended visit to her sister, Mrs. Geo. Kersey, at Lansing, Wyoming. Her niece, Lucille Kersey, who has been in school in St. Louis, will go home with her for the vacation.

Mrs. W. J. Fitz, Miss Allie Fitz, Mr. C. L. Stevenson and son, Winford, attended the closing exercises at the Arcadia College last Thursday. There were five graduates. The program was well rendered, the musical part especially. The violinists deserve much praise. The china paintings and the needlework were beautiful. Miss Marie Stevenson, one of our young ladies from Des Arc, had on exhibition some lovely fancy work and paintings. She is making excellent progress in her music and studies. She took part in the musical program. Miss Marie accompanied her father home, where she will spend the vacation.

Arland Edwards, the popular triangler, was here from New Madrid Sunday, the guest of Miss Etta Keathley.

Fred Farr spent Sunday here with his family.

Ever Myers has returned home from Potosi.

Annapolis News.

Raining here this (Sunday) evening and is much needed. Crops, in general, look well and have had good attention, so far. A good yield is expected.

Warren Kelly, of Sabula, is in town to-day, having brought a load of household goods for Fred C. Kitchell, who has sold out his grocery business there to Charles Probst. Fred is going south in the near future. His wife is still on the sick list.

Wm. Kitchell cut a big bee tree about three miles northwest of Annapolis to-day. It was found last fall. About forty pounds of honey were taken from the tree. The bees were very ill and stung all who got near them. Frank Robinson caught it first. The bees got after Jacky Brower and he ran, and last accounts he was still running, and they think he may be running yet.

Lem Loyd, Elmer Loyd and Charles Loyd, who were under bond to appear before Squire Syl Kitchell on the charge of assault, made their appearance last Thursday and entered a plea of guilty. As they had but little money they were let off with a fine of a dollar and costs—in all, $42.00; and an attorney's fee of $20 they say that they paid Mr. Edgar, and he did not have to come near the place. And C. P. Damron got $15 and did not have to come, either. That is making money easy, I think, and then the Squire gets soup through the mail because he did not impose heavier fines. They could not have paid it and their friends had to help them as it was.

Hot weather, and stove wood is a dollar a load. Pretty steep. BULLETIN.

The Arcadia Valley Gardens.

I have for sale any quantity of Cabbage, Tomato and other Plants. They are extra fine this year. We also have Pansy Plants of the most choice varieties. Good time now to put them out.
